Recognized as an authority in early childhood education, Stacie Goffin brings to her work a blend of academic, philanthropic, government-related, and executive-level experiences. She has both a broad and deep understanding of early childhood education's diverse programs, its multiple sectors, and its efforts to construct coherent systems that transcend the field's notorious fragmentation.

She has led and/or facilitated multiple change initiatives of significance. Spanning higher education, local, state, and national organizations, organizational development, and advocacy, her efforts have resulted in change for both policy and practice. Currently prodding early childhood education to transform itself into a professional field of practice, her work represents a strong example of leadership as an activity, rather than a position. She is strategic and results-oriented with proven ability to spearhead change and conceptualize and execute sustainable initiatives.

- ✦ Documented ability to develop a shared vision, achieve consensus, and deliver results within the context of diverse and complex internal and external forces.
- ✦ Skillful facilitator with track record of success.
- ✦ Accomplished public speaker, writer, and author, skilled at conceptualizing, synthesizing, and organizing information.

EXPERIENCE

2002-2004: Independent Consultant

2004 to present: Principal, Goffin Strategy Group, LLC

Established in 2004, the Goffin Strategy Group expands early childhood education's ability to provide effective programs and services for young children through leadership, capacity, and systems development. Results are achieved through customized consultation, including design, facilitation, and implementation of multi-stakeholder change initiatives; documents that analyze and promote understanding of complex issues; and strategy development.

Beyond creating a viable small business, the Goffin Strategy Group's accomplishments are anchored in results-oriented processes that stimulate capacity development and achieve defined results. These include facilitating cross-agency and multi-stakeholder efforts that produced the first-ever national program standards for early childhood education and direction-setting recommendations that have influenced national organizations', state agencies', governors', and legislators' actions and decision-making.

The Goffin Strategy Group has also effectively promoted leadership development as an under-utilized lever for effecting change in early childhood education. Stacie Goffin's publications, especially Ready or Not: Leadership Choices in Early Care and Education and Early Childhood Education For A New Era, are prompting a budding movement to transform early childhood education into a professional field of practice.
